PLACE HIGH IN WASHINGTON CONCLAVE

MISSOULA--

Angel Flight, the Air Force ROTC drill team and service group for women at the University of Montana, and the Arnold Air Society, the professional society for AFROTC cadets at UM, won the major awards over the weekend during the annual AFROTC Northwest Area Conclave at Washington State University, Pullman.

Besides being judged the Outstanding Flight for the second consecutive year, several individual members of UM Angel Flight received first-place awards in other divisions of the competition among colleges and universities in the northwest. Carla Swanson, Helena, prepared the UM Angel Flight Scrapbook, which won the first place award in that classification.

The Outstanding Adviser Award went to Col. Jack Swayze, who retired Jan. 31 as chairman and professor of aerospace studies at UM. Individual first-place awards also went to several UM coeds for various achievements--Shannon May Ashcraft, Helena, outstanding commander; Robin Morgan, Helena, outstanding angel; Lynda Kay Lovely, Livingston, scholarship award and Leanne Sue Marshall, Missoula, area efficiency award.

The Arnold Air Society from UM received the Outstanding Squadron Award and Rodney E. Nelson, Butte, an AFROTC cadet at UM, was named outstanding commander in the Pullman competition.

Both Angel Flight and the Arnold Air Society from UM are eligible to compete in the National Conclave in Dallas, Tex., in March.
